NAZIS, BRITAIN REPORT AIR BOMBINGS

Japan Cabinet Out Under Pressure Of Military For Extension Of Influence

BY UNITED PRESS

Japan's bid for domination of the Far East overshadowed European warfare today despite a new exchange of body blows between Great Britain and the axis powers on the sea and in the air.

The cabinet of Premier Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai was forced out by the resurgence of military and nationalist elements friendly to Germany and Italy and in favor of a one-party rule that would seek to extend Japanese influence over all of East Asia and to the South Seas regardless of British or American interests.

British attacks on German bases to whittle down the striking power of the Nazi air force continued with considerable success, according to London. For a month now, the Royal Air Force has been dropping tons of high explosives on German bases in the Reich, Belgium, Holland, Norway and France. The Germans repeatedly have reported that they suffered no important military damage but that civilians were killed in various towns.

It would seem certain that German aerial bombardment of the British Isles has caused far more damage than admitted at London. The Nazi high command reported today that German planes had just bombed such crowded and important points as Plymouth, Cardiff, Brighton and Pembroke to blast at factories and communications centers and lines.

In addition the Germans reported that three more British merchantmen totalling 18,000 tons were sunk and five others damaged in the English Channel yesterday, and that a U-boat sank a 9,000-ton tank ship in a convoy.

The British admitted that 22 vessels totalling 114,137 tons were sunk in the week ending July 7.

The British have showed increasing defiance rather than weakness to such threats and to suggestions, such as the Italian editor, Gayda Made, that Britain must either submit or suffer a shattering attack.

In this connection there were new rumors of a peace move—apparent. (Continued on Page Four)

Lions Told Of Defense Need

San Francisco Warns Club Re-Armament Is A Business Man's Job

The fulfillment of the national defense program is a business proposition which can best be handled by private enterprise and should be kept out of politics.

This is the kernel of the talk brought to Placerville Lions Tuesday noon by Sidney Bassett, of San Francisco, vice-president of The Bankamerica Company.

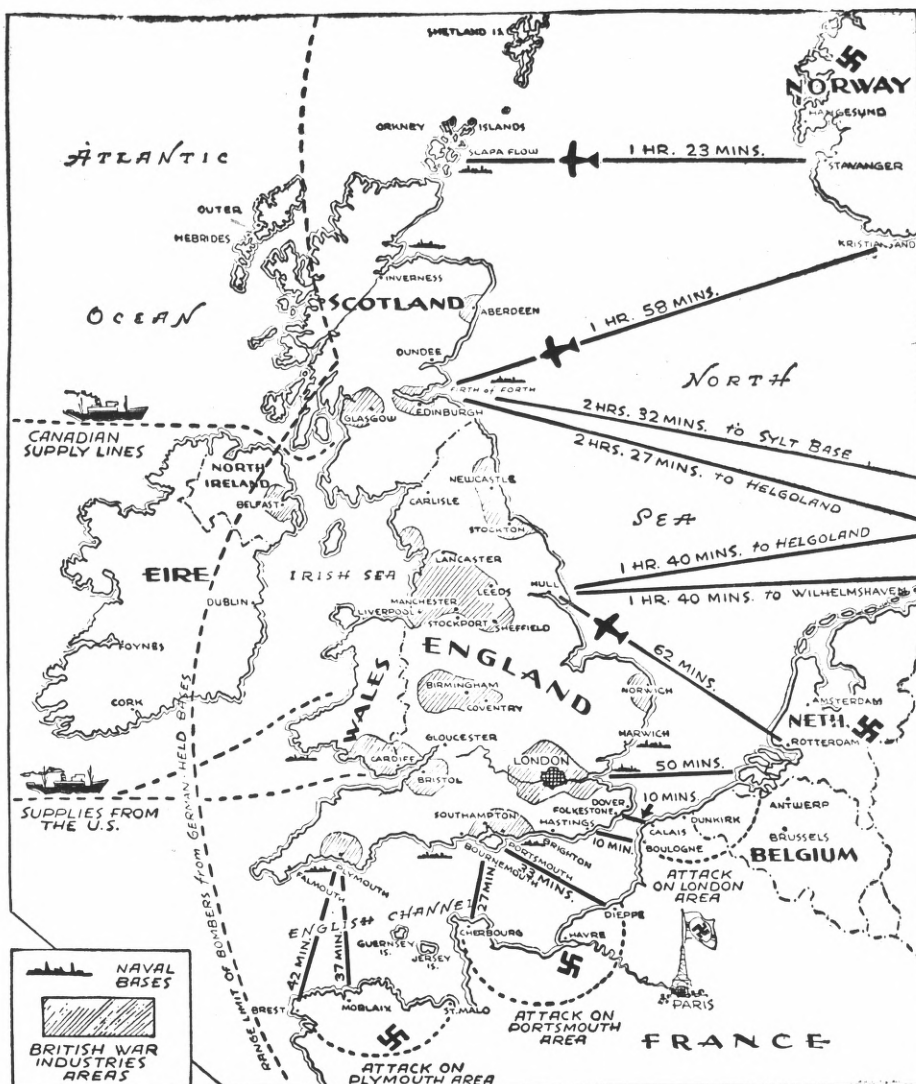

Mr. Bassett, who was presented to the club by Lion E. Ogden Hook, reached Sacramento by plane on Tuesday morning and was accompanied by car from that city to Placerville by Gene Mer, the Bankamerica Company representative at the capital city.

The speaker spoke generally on the new economic order which the people of the nation are facing and called attention to instances in the World War in which money voted for war purposes failed, under governmental auspices, to produce materials commensurate with the amount of money expended.

He urged that the national defense program is dependent upon business for fulfillment and that business should be left alone, free of politics, to supply the materials which are required.

Membership Chairman Thomas Maul reported the club has 72 members. Attendance chairman Roy G. Strum reported the attendance for the past year was 99.5 per cent. A financial report of the year was given by Chairman B. E. Larson and Vice-President Woodward Fox, who presided, summarized the club's welfare work as including nineteen dental cases, 16 pair of glasses, 17 tonsilectomies and medicines, medical services and cash advanced aggregating $15.10, for a total of $476.45.

Bombing Roads To The Battle Of Britain

With the British Isles expecting the loss of Hitler's thunderbolt momentarily, the dotted line from top to bottom of this map shows the range limit of raiding planes taking off from German-held bases on the continent. Also indicated is the time required for flights to and from bases. Note that Britain's supply ports, naval bases and industrial areas all are within range of the Nazi bombers.

900 ACRES OF PATENTED CLAIMS OWNED BY CALIFORNIA AZTEC

Tasker L. Oddie Heads Company Acquiring River Hill, Poverty Point And Kelsey Properties; May Mill 1,000 Tons Daily

(Reprinted from Mining and Industrial News)

A new mining organization known as California Aztec Mining Company has acquired the River Hill, the Poverty Point or Guilford and the Kelsey mining properties north of Placerville, El Dorado county, California, and is starting operations. With the exception of the Kelsey, which has had a small amount of work recently, the other properties have been closed down for many years. Tasker L. Oddie of Reno, for many years United States Senator from Nevada, is president of the new company, and Malcolm H. Carpenter, mining engineer with office in Balfour Building, San Francisco, is executive vice president and general manager.

New consolidation of adjoining properties comprises over 900 acres of patented mining claims through which main Mother Lode vein system strikes for three miles. There are four parallel veins in this system which give the new company many miles along the strike of the veins. About 25,000 feet of development work has been done on two of these veins, a good part of which is in ore, most of which is standing and ready for extrication with but a small amount of preparatory work.

Topography of the country makes operation of a good part of this property simple and inexpensive, as the South Fork of the American River runs in a deep canyon separating River Hill and Guilford properties.

The noble grand then called on several of the members present for short talks after which all repaired to the banquet room where ice cream and cookies were served. There were about sixty in attendance.

NUGGETS AND STUFF

We learn from the state Division of Forestry of two recent instances in which the combination of small boys, matches and youthful thoughtlessness about the seriousness of the consequences combined to start forest fires.

One fire, two miles above Camino, was finally extinguished by the combined efforts of state and federal forest workers and required the work of two pumper trucks and twenty-eight men.

Next day there was another fire near Pollock Pines requiring similar effort before it was brought under control. Both fires are said to have resulted from the combination of small boys, matches and youthful thoughtlessness.

Forestry officials get pretty hot under the collar in the matter of fire prevention and control and it is well for you and for me and for the public good in general that they do.

They realize the value of the forests to the community and to the nation and they are more conscious than most of us about the need for protecting that value because they are right on the firing line.

But, everybody knows the forests are valuable; and nearly everybody will agree that we ought to be careful to protect the forests.

To the boys who were responsible for the setting of these fires, we would point out that the forests are valuable to the county, state and nation as a natural resource; they are just like money in the bank and they do represent money in many different ways.

A person shouldn't be wasteful of money; he should guard it carefully and spend it wisely and make it "go" as far as possible.

Not only that, the forests are part of the government. And it isn't patriotic to be doing things against the government. It is not only not patriotic but it is decidedly unpatriotic when a person sings "My country 'tis of thee" and then starts a forest fire, even if the fire was an "accident."

Boys, let's not put ourselves in a position to have "accidents" like these. Let us not play with matches in the first place; and when we do have matches, let us be careful that we don't start fires.

There is one more excuse for writing under this heading today and that is in the matter of the (Continued on Page 4)

GOLD LEADS IN METAL YIELD INCREASE

State's Total Mineral Output For '39 Greatest Since '56, Says Report

The total value of gold, silver, copper, lead and zinc recovered from ores, old tailings, and gravels in California in 1939—$52,918,012—was greater than that for any year since 1856, and exceeded the 1938 total value by over five million dollars or 11 per cent, according to final figures compiled by the San Francisco office of the Bureau of Mines, United States Department of the Interior.

Although gold accounted for most of the increase, the output of each of the other four metals was larger in both quantity and value in 1939 than in 1938.

In 1938, 1,028 lode mines and 749 placer mines treated 5,577,853 tons of ore and old tailings and 162,335,000 cubic yards of gravel, respectively, to recover 1,435,264 fine ounces of gold valued at $50,234,240; 2,599,139 fine ounces of silver valued at $1,764,264; 8,360,000 pounds of copper valued at $869,440; 1,052,000 pounds of lead valued at $49,444; and 12,000 pounds of zinc valued at $624.

In 1938, 927 lode mines and 676 placer mines treated 4,648,240 tons of ore and old tailings and 149,864,000 cubic yards of gravel, respectively, to recover 1,311,129 ounces of gold valued at $45,889,515; 2,590,804 ounces of silver valued at $1,674,863; 1,612,000 pounds of copper valued at $157,976; and 990,000 pounds of lead valued at $45,540.

Since 1929, when the value of California gold output reached a low of $8,526,703, production has expanded almost six-fold; the gain in 1939 over 1938 alone was more than half the total value of output in 1929. In quantity the 1939 gold output was greater than in any year since 1862, and in value it was greater than that for any year since The Grass Valley-Nevada City district in which the state's largest mine, operated by the Idaho Maryland Mines Corporation, is located, continued to be the leading mining district in California.

One of the notable features of the year was the continuing expansion of dragline dredge production. This method of placer-gold recovery was introduced in California in 1933. In 1939, 109 dragline dredges worked. (Continued on Page Three)

N.S.G.W. Endorse Member Drive

Leader's Proposal Meets With General Approval In 137 Parlors Of Order

According to advices received from John T. Regan, Grand Secretary at San Francisco, the 137 parlors of the Native Sons of the Golden West have endorsed wholeheartedly the proposal of their grand president, Henry S. Lyon, that a definite and concerted effort be made to increase the membership of the organization.

Following his installation as Grand President at the Grand Parlor lately held at Bakersfield, Mr. Lyon called for action in the enrollment of members and word from the Grand Secretary is that many of the parlors are appointing special committees on membership.

Adding impetus to the movement Lyon revealed that officers and deputy grand president of the Native Sons, cooperating with officials of the grand parlor, have established several awards to be presented to individuals and parlors obtaining increases in membership.

"Thousands of Californians are eligible for membership," Lyon said, "and through the current campaign we hope to enlist their aid in the preservation of Native Sons' ideals—patriotism and humanitarianism."

"The Native Sons as an organization boasts of a long record of progress and improvement in California—homeless children placement, research scholarships and perpetuation of California landmarks—and it should be of importance to all native born Californians to carry forward this program."

Application for membership, concluded President Lyon, may be arranged through any city where parlors are located.

3 FINED $225 FOR CONTEMPT

Each Of Group Assessed $75 In Matter Of Tahoe Resort Right Of Way

In the matter of R. H. Strosnider vs. Ernest and Ida Pomin and Jeanette Watson, which for some time past has been in the El Dorado County Superior Court, the three defendants were found in contempt Friday morning and were fined an aggregate of $225 for their failure to comply with the findings of the court.

The issue was the matter of a right-of-way claimed by the plaintiff through the property of the defendants to the shores of Lake Tahoe and the court has ruled on April 24th sustaining the plaintiff's contention.

Defendants subsequently appealed from the finding and the appeal is now pending.

However, the defendants took the view that since the matter was being appealed the case was still unsettled and compliance with the court's findings would be held in abeyance.

Friday, the plaintiff cited the defendants for their failure to open up the right of way in keeping with the court's findings and Judge George H. Thompson found that the defendants were in contempt for their failure to comply with the court's ruling. Ten days was granted in which to pay the fines.

REGISTRATION FOR PRIMARY ELECTION CLOSING ON THURSDAY

Registration deadline for the August 27 primary election will be Thursday night, according to County Clerk Arthur J. Koletzke.

This leaves only two more days for the registration of those desiring to cast ballots at the election. The clerk's office is open from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Registration is required from those who have never registered before, from those who failed to vote at either the primary or general election of 1938, and from those who have changed their residences since the last time they voted.

Koletzke said he estimated this county will have a registration figure of about 8,200 for the primary.

Beurre Hardy Growers Vote

Referendum On Proposed Amendments To Marketing Agreement Being Conducted

SAN FRANCISCO — Proposed amendments to the Federal Marketing Agreement and Order for Beurre Hardy pears produced in California are being placed before the industry for approval.

Growers are voting in a referendum on the issuance of an amended order, and concurrently an amended agreement is being submitted to handlers for their approval.

Ward B. Studt, field representative, stated that although ballots have been mailed to all known growers, Beurre Hardy producers who for any reason do not receive ballots by mail, may vote in local county agricultural conservation offices.

"The county conservation association offices," Studt said, "have been designated as official polling places during the hours from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. on July 18 and 19. Growers mailing ballots, however, should endeavor to do so prior to the closing date of the referendum, midnight, July 22."

Proposed amendments to the Marketing Agreement Program can be placed in effect if at least two-thirds of the growers voting in the referendum, by number or by volume, favor issuance of the amended order, and if the amendments are approved by handlers representing at least 67 per cent of the volume of pears shipped last season by handlers signing the original agreement.

Our complete selection of all gifts for the bride, groom and home will make it a pleasure to give. A wide variety of lovely gifts that are original and surprisingly inexpensive.

Placerville Municipal Swimming Pool.

There's a real community asset. Everybody seems to enjoy it and folks come from many sections of the county to take a dip in the pool.

Swimming is mighty good exercise and a fine form of recreation, especially when the pool is cleanly kept and well regulated.

Now here's a truth we are going to send after a lie. We don't expect the truth to catch up with the lie for a while, but you can help discredit the lie if you will, and you can depend on us to keep you informed, too.

Somebody has started the report that owing to an illness in the community, it is going to be necessary to close the swimming pool.

Now, that isn't true. Nobody knows anything about there being any of the type of illness in the community that the report says there is at present; not one case.

The pool's a good place to swim and nobody knows of any reason for closing it, so if you hear the report, you'll know that it isn't true.

We wonder how such reports get started?

MANSION OF FEAR

Marcia Howards meets a handsome young doctor, Larry Norton, on her way to Stipstown to join her father. Mr. Howards has bought a house, the large, forbidding looking Stips estate, which Marcia dislikes immediately, feeling that there is something evil about the place. Then local carpenters refuse to work for Howards, and Larry suggests that Sidney Allstone, a wealthy man who practically controls the town, is responsible. That night Larry receives a call from a stranger, Dr. Ashton Brown, who claims to be the son of the deceased grand-daughter of old Colonel Stips. Brown has been warned of a mystery surrounding the Stips house, and he persuades Larry to let him come to his house, disguised, as Peter Macbride, an old friend. Then an Italian, Gigi, asks Howards for work. Gigi has worked in the house before, and he tells Howards that he believes there is a secret room there. When the Howards move into the house they are warned to get out, and Gigi has a strange accident. Next day, Macbride shows Marcia and Marcia a picture of the man who ran a nerve cure at the Stips house for ten years. The man is Allstone!

CHAPTER XVIII

"HOW could it be Allstone?" Marcia puzzled. "The doctor who ran that sanitarium left town ten years ago."

"Yes," Macbride answered, "and Allstone came here exactly nine years ago! What I want to know is why, after practically running away because there were unpleasant rumors being spread about his sanitarium, he returned to Stipstown and ran the risk of being recognized?"

"What I want to know," said Larry, "is how you learned all this and where you got that picture."

Macbride frowned. "That's the funny part," he said slowly. "It came through the mail, postmarked here, addressed to me through Larry, and there was a scrawled note saying that Allstone, under his real name, Dr. Blitz, had run the sanitarium and returned under his present alias one year after his disappearance as Blitz. I've already learned that Allstone did come here nine years ago."

"But how do you know," asked Marcia, "that this is a picture of Dr. Blitz?"

"I showed it to Larry's housekeeper and she identified it at once as the doctor, but she didn't notice the resemblance to Allstone fortunately."

"I don't understand it," Larry grunted. "Well," he sighed after a moment's silence, "we can't do anything about it for the moment, and I want to see the cellar."

"Just a moment," said Marcia. "Have you any ideas, Macbride, about who might have sent you this?"

"No," he answered hesitantly, "only it reminded me of the anonymous letters I received in England." He frowned. "Do you mind if I come out to the house with you? I'd like a word with that man Gigi Larry's been telling me about."

"Why?"

"Oh, just a hunch."

"All right," Larry said impatiently. "Let's get going."

THEY drove out to the house in silence. When the butler let them in, Marcia sent immediately for Gigi.

"What were you doing in the cellar last night?" she asked him when he appeared.

The Italian flushed. "Well, Miss Howards," he said finally, "that unbarred window worried me. I decided to go down and stand guard."

Larry grunted. "We'll go down and have a look at that cellar right now."

"I'll wait up here," Macbride said unexpectedly. "I'd like to speak to you, Gigi, as soon as possible."

"Very well, sir," the Italian answered quietly, and led Marcia and Larry to the cellar.

Gigi was not much help to Larry. He couldn't remember the exact spot where he had cut him- self. It was, however, on the wall facing the cellar steps. Larry stuck his hands in his pockets and wandered around. The cellar was large. A big furnace occupied one corner. There were empty bins, a small room full of coal, another room with a washbasin.

Larry went over and studied the wall where Gigi had cut himself. "Curious, this rough stone construction," he murmured. "Have you a crowbar and sledge hammer in the house, Gigi?"

"No, sir. I could get them though."

"Oh, if you don't have the crowbar, you must surely have a chisel!" Larry suggested.

GIGI nodded and left the cellar. Larry stuck a cigarette in his mouth and wandered around. He opened the door to the coal bin, and stared in idly. Then he shrugged his shoulders and came back to Marcia.

"I wonder what's keeping Gigi," he said impatiently.

As he spoke Gigi reappeared with a steel chisel, a hammer, and an automobile repair lamp.

"I thought you might find this handy, sir," he said, holding up the light.

"Stout fellow," Larry grinned. "Plug it in. And now to work."

Marcia sat down on an empty box and watched. Gigi had gone upstairs to talk to Macbride. For almost an hour Larry examined the wall, inch by inch, putting his chisel into every crack between the stones, pushing, hammering and feeling each one. His hair had fallen over his forehead in tangled disorder and his face was set and determined. Finally he stopped for a moment, looking discouraged.

"There must be something here," he said. "I won't give up if it takes me a week, but—right now it seems pretty hopeless."

Marcia moved restlessly on the box. It was a hard seat, but she had no intention of going away. The time dragged, and then suddenly Larry let out an exclamation.

"I've got it!" he cried. "Come here! Look, you see this—"

MARCIA ran to his side. With his left hand Larry was pushing against the edge of a block of stone and pointing with his right hand to a sharp, wedge-shaped piece of steel, barely visible, that jutted out about an inch from the wall. Then he released his left hand and the metal piece sank back flush with the stone wall, to all practical purposes invisible.

"Do you see?" Larry cried excitedly. "By pressing in the right spot a spring is released and that bit of steel shoots out. The moment the pressure is withdrawn it returns to place. That's why Gigi and your father couldn't account for their cuts. Your father, stumbling with both hands out, accidentally touched the right spot with one hand, cutting the other and Gigi did practically the same thing only he had his arm against the wall."

"But what is that piece of steel?" Marcia asked, puzzled.

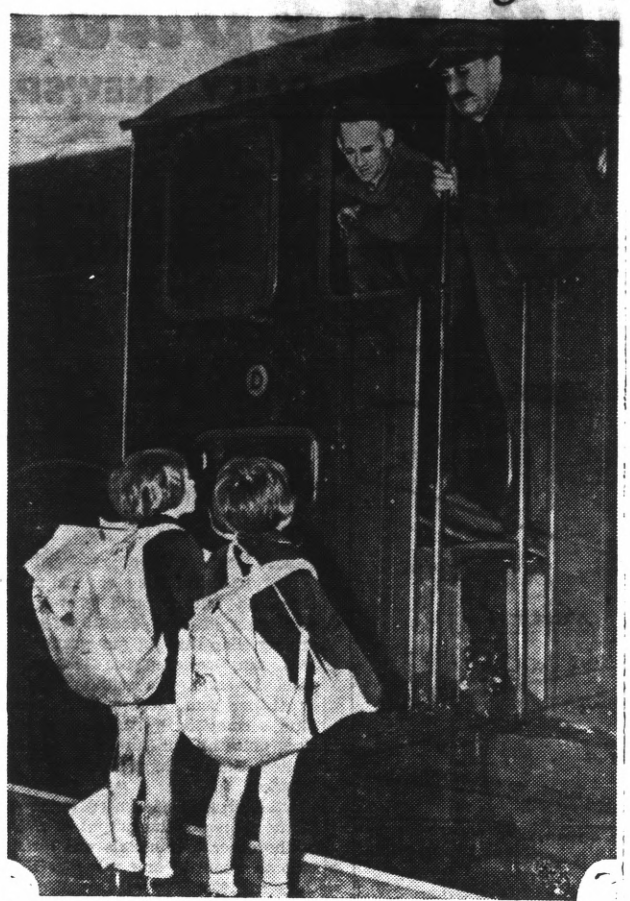

"We'll soon see," Larry said grimly.

He carefully wadded a handkerchief around his right hand to avoid cutting his fingers, and then pressed with his left hand against the edge of the stone. With the clumsy binding around his fingers however, he had some difficulty in catching hold of the little piece of metal.

Finally, he succeeded and pulled towards him. For a moment nothing happened. Then slowly the block of stone swung out.

Will We Be Safe, Mr. Engineer?

These two little evacuees from London pause in their flight from the British capital to ask the engineer of the refugee train if there will be any air raids where they are going. Nearly a quarter of a million children have been evacuated from English cities in recent weeks as Britain prepares to repel Germany's expected invasion.

"DRAFT ROOSEVELT" FACTION CLAIMS 904 VOTES IN CONVENTION

WASHINGTON, (UP)—President Roosevelt said that Sen. Alben W. Barkley will make a statement tonight to the Democratic convention in Chicago bearing upon the third term question.

Without revealing the exact scope of the statement, Mr. Roosevelt said Senator Barkley's statement should answer the question of whether he will or will not seek re-election.

(Ed. Note—Sen. Barkley will speak to the convention at 7 p. m. Pacific time. He is to speak about an hour and will make the "statement" at the close of his talk when, if the convention is on schedule, should be about 8 o'clock.)

STADIUM, Chicago, (UP)—Draft Roosevelt Democrats today claimed 904 of the 1,094 votes as "plain bunk" reports that menacing anti-third term sentiment was developing here.

The development of "draft Roosevelt" sentiment was under circumstances persuasively suggesting that Mr. Roosevelt does not want to run again unless pretty nearly all of the 1,094 delegates want him to. The Roosevelt high command, under leadership of South Carolina's Sen. James P. Byrnes, says pretty nearly all of them do.

New dealers indicated that they were willing to compromise with party isolationists and forego a platform endorsement of President Roosevelt's policy of giving full material aid, short of soldiers and ships to Great Britain.

The Democrats were ready to write an anti-war plank of the strongest sort which will satisfy isolationists and prevent party disharmony in President Roosevelt's third term campaign.

Treasure Island, San Francisco Bay—Miss Liberty, above, releasing one of the hundreds of carrier pigeons which carried the world's smallest copies of the Declaration of Independence—no bigger than a postage stamp—to government heads throughout the Western Hemisphere. Inset, an actual size reproduction of the tiny Declaration of Independence which includes a ringing declaration for 1940 of America's independence of "the injustice, the hate and the tyranny which are engulfing the Old World."

to several million tons of milling ore of good commercial grade can be considered in sight or possibly in sight. Furthermore, as these properties are on the true Mother Lode, and as they show the veins to be remarkably strong and persistent in the lower levels and carrying the same or higher values than they do above, it is safe to say that they will go down to far greater depths as they do on the Lode elsewhere.

The company is now working on the small Kelsey mill with the purpose of adequately equipping and enlarging it. By October, they expect to bring it up to 300 tons capacity per day. They then plan to build a large mill on the other properties, so the milling capacity of the combined properties will be 1000 tons per day.

Everything that could be desired for a successful, large and long-lived mining and milling operation is claimed in connection with the combined properties. Large tonnages of good grade milling ore, low operating costs, economies brought about by unit operation of combined properties, ideal geological conditions, excellent chances of far greater depth of ore bodies based on what has been found in similar ore deposits on the Mother Lode, and many thousands of feet of necessary and practical development work already done, a good part of which is available for operation.

Officers of the company are Tasker L. Oddie of Reno, Nevada, president; and Malcolm H. Carpenter of San Francisco, executive vice president and general manager. C. E. Halliburton of Fresno, is a director, also.

John J. Taylor, secretary and treasurer, has had long experience in banking and brokerage operations as well as in mining.

Tasker L. Oddie was former governor, and United States Senator from Nevada. For ten years he was chairman of the Mining Committee of the United States Senate.

He organized and was chairman of the U. S. Senate Committee of Gold and Silver Enquiry, which did very much extensive study of and useful work in the economics of gold and silver throughout the world. The publications of that committee have been extensively studied and used as reference for years, and are at this time being much sought after. He has been active in mining matters for many years. He was one of the discoverers of and the first manager of the principal properties of Tonopah, and through his efforts largely, one hundred and fifty million dollars was produced in that camp. He was one of the active operators in Goldfield and numbers of other camps in the west.

Malcolm H. Carpenter is a construction and mining engineer as well as metallurgist. He has had many years of practical experience in mining operations throughout this country and Mexico. Carpenter advised C. E. Halliburton to take up and develop the famous Alhambra Shumway mine after many others had condemned it. The result was the discovery of the famous million dollar shoot of gold ore.

SACRAMENTO BOX COMPANY RE-INSTATES MEN WHO WERE DISCHARGED

SACRAMENTO—(Announcement has been made that P. V. Burke, president of the Sacramento Lumber and Box Company, has agreed at the demand of the National Labor Relations Board to reinstate twenty employees discharged at the concern's plant at China Flat, near Kyburz, June 10th.

The reinstatement carries with it back pay for the time lost since their discharge.

The complaint was filed with the NLRB by D. H. Riggs, business agent for the Central California Council of Lumber Handlers, American Federation of Labor.

At a bargaining agency election held at the plant a month ago affiliation with the Industrial Employees Union was voted by a majority of the employees, who previously had been represented by the China Flat Employees Association.

Abandonment of the contract between the company and the China Flat association and an agreement not to discourage union membership were included in the agreement the lumber company signed at the demand of the NLRB.

ed 142 properties and recovered $6,038,165 in gold from 31,618,000 cubic yards of gravel. For the first time since 1930, gold output by the connected-bucket dredges declined; in 1939, 47 dredges worked 34 properties and recovered $12,959,240 from 121,655,000 cubic yards of gravel. Average recovery per cubic yard of gravel by dragline dredging increased from 16.8 cents in 1938 to 19.1 cents in 1939; yield from gravels treated by connected-bucket dredging declined from 11.2 cents to 10.7 cents during the same period.

Silver production was practically unchanged in 1939 compared with 1938, but copper output increased 419 per cent in quantity and 450 per cent in value because of greatly expanded operations at the Walker Mine in Plumas county. Lead and zinc production in 1939 remained very small.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Brumback were among those in Sacramento on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Thatcher are here from Vallejo visiting friends. James K. Pierson was in town Monday from Strawberry resort.

The fire alarm Saturday about midnight was occasioned by a grass fire near the city limits on Cedar Ravine.

Mrs. Jane Barkley of Camino is having three new cottages built on her property there. Each house is composed of two rooms, a bath and service porch. Chester Carver is in charge of the work.

Mr. and Mrs. John Fox, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Curtis and Jeffery Harper were in Sacramento Friday night to see the double-header baseball games of the Pacific Coast League.

Building Better Manhood, Beginning in Boyhood

The Boys of Today Are the Men of Tomorrow

HOME, CHURCH and SCHOOL each contributes vitally to the development of BETTER BOYS to be 'THE BETTER MEN OF TOMORROW.' These three great American institutions build character, religious stability and general knowledge. The principles expounded by these three great American institutions need only to be put to practical experience.

Newspaper boys' activities give the opportunities for practical experience, supplementing the informative instruction of youth, with real training in the principles of business.

From the profits of their newspaper businesses, newspaper boys support themselves, often contribute to the family budget and the profits they earn furnish many of them with funds to continue their education at colleges and universities. Every boy can profit by this practical business training!

And he will use it all his life

Boyhood messages now. Man's affairs tomorrow. But whoever he wants to talk with, the telephone will be ready. Growing, like himself, in usefulness. Matching strides with him. Bell System scientists and engineers are working hard to develop a service that will be tomorrow's miracle. Some day he'll say to his sons, "Why, in 1940 it sometimes took my Dad, on the Pacific Coast, a whole minute and a half to get New York!"

"CHARLIE CHAN IN PANAMA," at the Empire Theatre today only, is a timely film play pointing out the importance of the Panama Canal and the need for its being adequately defended. Above are Lionel Atwill, Jean Rogers and Sidney Toler, who seems to be doing a bit of sleuthing.

"CHARLIE CHAN IN PANAMA" TIMELY TALE OF PLOT AGAINST CANAL

A fiendish plot to destroy the Panama Canal and trap the fleet in the wrecked locks is the challenge faced by the famous Earl Derr Biggers sleuth in "Charlie Chan in Panama".

The latest of the 20th Century-Fox pictures, featuring Sidney Toler in the title role, is the Tuesday feature at the Empire, with Jean Rogers, Lionel Atwill, Mary Nash, Sen Yung, Kane Richmond, Chris-Pin Martin, Lionel Royce, Helen Erickson and Jack La Rue featured in the supporting cast.

With the main body of the fleet stationed in the Pacific, but requiring immediate, unhindered access to the Atlantic, keeping the Canal open becomes vitally necessary to the current naval strategy.

So well have the defenses been developed that attack from land, sea or air, offers practically no menace. Sabotage, then, becomes the principal threat to the ship artery's safety, and it is such an attempt which motivates the thrilling story of "Charlie Chan in Panama."

With the great locks mined, and the man who might avert the disaster murdered, Chan cleverly weeds out the many suspects and, with but 60 seconds left, risks his life on a daring last-minute stratagem.

Norman Foster directed "Charlie Chan in Panama," from an original screen play by John J. Larson and Lester E. Ziffren. Sol M. Wurtzel acted as executive producer.

ly as a part of the totalitarian war of nerves—but it seemed unlikely that Germany would make any peace gesture at a time when it had been rejected in advance by London and when the British could exploit such an offer to build up fighting spirit in their own country.

In Africa, Italy claimed advances into British Kenya colony. The British Royal Air Force at Cairo, Egypt, said in a communique that its planes had bombed Italian bases at Tobruk, Bardia and El Gazala in North Africa and El Faidia and Diredawa in East Africa, scoring direct hits on two large naval oil tanks at Tobruk. The British also reported shooting down 20 Italian naval planes last week.

COUNTY FARMERS SAVE $6,412 IN YEAR ON LOAN INTEREST

Farmers in El Dorado County will save $6,412 a year as a result of legislation just enacted by congress affecting interest rates on federal land bank and land bank commissioner loans.

The temporary rate of 3½ percent on first mortgage land bank loans will be continued for two years ending June 30, 1942. During this period the interest rate on first and second mortgage land bank commissioner loans will be reduced from 4 to 3½ percent. Land bank and commissioner loans were originally written at contract rates averaging about 5 percent.

At present about 128 El Dorado county farmers have land bank and commissioner loans outstanding aggregating $427,500. The difference between the contract rate and the temporary rate thus effects a substantial saving for farmers.

One-Fifth Interest In Tractor Subject Of Suit

Archie Cummings is the plaintiff and John, Alice, Floyd and Everett Cummings are the defendants in a suit filed in Superior Court in which the issue is the plaintiff's right to a one-fifth interest in a 60-horsepower tractor.

The complaint alleges all of the principals associated themselves together by oral agreement on November 19, 1937 to engage jointly in lumbering; that the tractor is joint property by the terms of the agreement and that plaintiff's claim of interest is not recognized by the defendants.
